FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions)

How can I get to La Paz?

Although La Paz has its own airport, most people fly into Los Cabos International Airport, about a two hour's drive south of La Paz and served by major carriers like Continental, Delta, America West and American Airlines.

What's the weather like?

The weather in La Paz is sunny most of the year, during the summer average temperatures is 24°C and 15°C in winter time.

Where can I stay?

La Paz does have a few hotels on the outskirts of town, including the Hacienda del Cortez . But for convenience and night life it's best to stay in one of the old hotels along the Malecón, like El Angel Azul Hotel, original Mexican Hacienda style, just steps away from the cathedral, city's library, museum and the "Malecon" waterfront; Hotel Perla or Los Arcos. Los Arcos, a longtime favorite with sport fishermen, is a big white-stucco friendly place with balconies that overlook the bay, while Hotel Perla dates back to 1940 and offers a nightclub and an open-air restaurant, perfect for watching the sunsets. The brand new hotel Fiesta Inn just opened doors on 2005, located 15 miles south on the road to Pichilingue Port; Hotel La Concha stands by the beach and it's one of the formers hotels in La Paz.

When is the best time to go?

The best time to come and visit will be in late January to March, when it's milder and it's whale-watching season in the Sea of Cortez.

What about Medical Services?

Both public and private hospitals handle emergencies for foreigners. You will need to pay for services when you leave so get a receipt in case you want to collect on your insurance. Look in the phone book for specialists such as allergists, acupuncturists, chiropractors, dentists etc.
